

Would You Give A Good Goddamn?

My dearest, what if I ran from this god awful town,
Like a buffalo knowing not what he will become,
Like a soldier knowing not if he is coming home...
Would you care? Would you notice? Would you give a good goddamn?

My honey, what if I slumbered for ten thousand years,
Like an exhausted bear who never wanted to wake,
Like an old ship buried in the trenches of the sea...
Would you care? Would you notice? Would you give a good goddamn?

My sweetheart, what if I walked off the edge of a cliff,
Like a child in the cold knowing not of heaven and hell,
Like an old man in a chair waiting for his day to come...
Would you care? Would you notice? Would you give a good goddamn?

My darling, what if I saved you from ruin,
Like a warrior who makes quietus for his home,
Like a samurai who dies for someone he loves...
Would you care? Would you notice? Would you give a good goddamn?

My love, what if I could stay here with you forever,
To have to hold and to love for an eternity,
To hold your hand and keep you safe until my day comes...
Would you care? Would you notice? Would you give a good goddamn?
